Ress Easy. - The New York Herald is Ress Easy.—The New York Herald is a great paper. It has correspondents over all the known—and unknown—world. Its editors know the governments of all lands. Its means of comparison are comprehensive, and this is shat it says of the United States: This is nessy government to run. The effect manusches of the old world, the empires and kingdoms, and principalities and powers of the other hemisphere, the petty republics of Central and South America, and even the mixed government of king Bill, require constant care and attention, but here is a government, we remember seems time. sing Bill, require constant care and attention, but here is a government, the best," we remember some time to have heard it remarked. "the world ever say," with a civil service described by the foremost stateman of the party in power as "the best on the planet;" a country illimitable in resources, where seals in the Senate are worth from $50,000 to $60,000, and railroad companies can afford to pay $10,000 apiece for Senators; a country with an elastic earchey and a plastic finance minister, a national debt of magnificent proportions, a syndicate, a peace policy, and a Modec war—and it runs itself.

Now, this gentleman is passionate by nature, and he got so angry that he discharged the servant, and told his wife that she mustn't do so any more. This isn't the way that old farmer Pettengill, who lived down in Connectiont, acted under similar circumstances. One day he went home and found his hired man hugging Mrs. P. Mr. P. said nothing, but went back to the field. As the hired but went back to the field. As the hired man didn't come out to work for some time, the farmer went in search of him. He found him in his lown room packing up his trunks. "What's the matter, Zeb" said Mr. P. "N-o-o-th-ing!" said Zeb. "What are you packing your trunk for, then?" "I'm going away?" "Going away! What for?" "You know what you caught me doing this morning!" "Pshaw!" said Mr. P., laughing heartily. "Don't be so foolish. If you and me can't hug the old woman enough, I'll hire another man." hire another man.

METHODS OF DRINKING WATER,-The natives of Kamtschatka, when first discovered by Russian sailors, were probably the only nation on earth who drank nothing but water; yet, as if to compen-sate for this, enjoyed their one beverage in a manner not dreamed of in civilized in a manner not dreamed of in civilized countries, carrying their drinking capacity to an extent which makes one shudder to think of. They commenced to drink water even before eating, nearly two quarts before their first meal; so they continued during the day, and when night came, their last labor was to place a huge vessel of water by their bedside, and to fill it brimful with snow and ice. Next morning the bucket was empty. The Lap and Greenlanders, on the other hand, perfer it warm. Both nations keep a large copper kettle, or when such laxuries are still unknow, a ponderous vessel of wood, adorned with bone knobs and hoops, constantly boiling. A large, vessel of wood, adorned with bone knobs and hoops, constantly boiling. A large, well-carved spoon is ever ready, and from morn till night the thirsty intives are drinking the nauseous liquid.

Tax Wheeling, Va., Register, gives publicity to a remarkable story purport-ing to be furnished by a thoroughly re-liable and truthfull man in regard to a said girl who is said to roam the woods near Windridge, Greene county. Penn-sylvania. Her name is Lucinda Lewis, and for eighteen years she has lived this wild life, sleeping in the centers of straw tacks during the night, and hiding in them, during the summer the wild and cultivated fruits she intends for her winter's store of provisions. She is now thirty years old, and is as wild as the most untamed denizen of the forest.
